Confederate Veteran.

Published Monthly in the Interest of Confederate Veterans and Kindred Topics

PRICE. 10 CENTS. YEARLY, $1. | Vol. IV. | NASHVILLE, TENN., OCTOBER, 1896. | No. 10. | S. A. CUNNINGHAM Editor.

Entered at the postoffice, Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.

Advertisements: Two dollars per inch one time, or $20 a year, except last page. One page, one time, special, $40. Discount: Half year, one issue; one year, two issues. This is an increase on the former rate.

Contributors will please be diligent to abbreviate. The space is too important for anything that has not special merit.

The date to a subscription is always given to the month before it ends. For instance, if the VETERAN be ordered to begin with January, the date on mail list will be December, and the subscriber is entitled to that number.

Though men deserve, they may not win success,
The brave will honor the brave, vanquished none the less.

The "civil war" was too long ago to be called the "late" war and when correspondents use that term the word "great" (war) will be substituted.

Annual Convention United Daughters of the Confederacy will be held in Nashville, Tenn., November 11th, 1896. Special rates have been granted for delegates. Presidents of Chapters are earnestly requested to see that their Chapters have delegates present. Full information will be sent each Chapter.

The railroads will give tickets to the Kentucky-Tennessee Reunion at Nashville, Oct. 14-15th, at one fare for the round trip. A day longer limit will be given those who come 100 miles and over. Kentucky comrades will note this is less by one-third than the rate originally offered them. Application has been made and urged upon the Southern States Passenger Association in behalf of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, who are to convene in Nashville, November 11th. It will be indeed strange and harsh if they don't give the usual rate of one cent per mile, which has been the established rate for years to similar organizations. The United Daughters, representing nearly one hundred Chapters in the various Divisions of the Southern States, certainly merit as high favors as any body of women in existence.

An interesting and faithful account of two great reunions is given in this VETERAN by Albert Sidney Morton of St. Paul. Mr. Morton did not refer to a contrast that is opportune just now. At St. Paul prominent Grand Army veterans declined to participate in the proceedings so as to give their time to advancing the political interests of candidates for office. At Richmond, as at all other Confederate reunions, no such thing is ever allowed. The law is most rigid and the Constitution expressly states that "Forfeiture of membership shall be declared against any camp allowing political discussions."

Mr. Morton's criticism of the failure of St. Paul to honor decrepit veterans specially suggests the sad reflection that new generations cannot comprehend the sacrifice of those who fought for the Union, on the one hand, and to vindicate constitutional Rights of the States, on the other.

"THE SUN SHINES BRIGHT."

The greeting to Kentucky comrades in this VETERAN occupies considerable space. Aside of the general interest in those noble men, there is personal pride in their coming to Nashville for their reunion. A circumstance in this connection is noted as ludicrous. Of course reunions of Kentuckians have ever been in their State, and when courtesy of the floor was given the writer at the last reunion—Bowling Green—when instead of something to say about the VETERAN—his hobby—he explained that it was to invite the Orphan Brigade, Morgan's Cavalry, and the other Kentucky Camps to hold their next reunion in Nashville, the Commander, Gen Lewis, and other comrades seemed astounded and to wonder if the speaker was really sane. A committee was appointed to consider the matter and very soon, by unanimous vote, the Committee concurred in accepting the invitation.

Nashville, with characteristic hospitality, through her Confederate organizations, is preparing a welcome that assures happy results.

Comrade Joseph B. O'Bryan, eminently successful in whatever he undertakes, has been selected by Frank Cheatham Bivouac to have charge of their entertainment, and Nashville Daughters will have OPEN HOMES on the morning of October 14th.

That it is reunion time for the Tennessee Division, too, is generally known, so the occasion will be a sort of foretaste of the joy anticipated for our great brotherhood from everywhere next spring.

This coming of Kentucky comrades to the capital of Tennessee for a reunion is especially appropriate. The twin States have ever fraternized happily, and it was in Tennessee that Kentuckians rallied to fight their battles. Neutrality could not be exercised, as was the wish of Kentuckians, and these patriotic citizens soon saw that neutrality could not be maintained.

Ah, the pathos of the times when in 1861 her noble men came to Tennessee! Mention is made in this connection of Hon. Thos. Bell Monroe, then three score and ten. Judge Monroe had married one of the noted daughters of Gen. John Adair, sister to that eminent lady "Florida White." Judge Monroe's views and prominence gave assurance that he would not be permitted to remain at home, so he came to Nashville, where he formally took the oath of allegiance to the Confederate States Government. The oath was administered by Judge W. H. Humphreys. The Nashville Union and American of October 7, 1861, in a lengthy editorial about it, mentioned that the two eminent jurists had held like positions as United States District Judges in their respective States for many years, that Judge Monroe had been a jurist of eminence for about forty years, etc.

GEN. WM. PRESTON.

Judge Monroe went directly from Nashville to his native Virginia. The two brothers who were fatally wounded at Shiloh were sons of Judge Monroe. (See page 343.) He was chosen to represent Kentucky in the Confederate Congress.

After the war Judge Monroe spent the remainder of his days at Pass Christian, Miss., where his two daughters, Misses Kate and Polly, still reside.

These kindred associations between

THE ORPHAN BRIGADE—KENTUCKIANS.

Data furnished by Thos. D. Osborne, Secretary: The Orphan Brigade, officially styled the First Kentucky Brigade of Infantry, and probably the most famous body of Southern soldiers, was organized in the State of Tennessee. In June, 1861, Gen. W. T. Withers, Colonels James W. Hewitt and Robert A. Johnson, backed by wealthy citizens of Louisville, began the work of recruiting soldiers for the South. In July following, Camp Boone, two miles from the L. & N. Railroad and seven miles from Clarksville, was laid off. Young men rallied from all parts of the State and nation. Col. Hewitt resigned from the noted Seventh New York Regiment and came; Capt. Ed. P. Byrne, a Kentuckian living in Mississippi, had six brass cannon cast at Memphis and brought them with him to Camp Boone; the Governor of Kentucky marched as a private in the ranks until killed at Shiloh.

Thirty years after the war Prof. Shaler, of Harvard, in his great articles on "The Natural Man," published in Scribner's Magazine, selected the Orphan Brigade as the typical one of the nation, and said: "This was the most purely American command in either army, and was in many respects the most remarkable body of soldiers in the modern world."

The organization of the regiment was as follows: Second Kentucky, Col. Roger W. Hanson; Fourth Kentucky, Col. Robert P. Trabue; Sixth Kentucky, Col Joseph H. Lewis; Ninth Kentucky, Col. Thomas H. Hunt. The first formal announcement of the Brigade was in General Order No. 51, October 28, 1861, by Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston. It was commanded in whole or in part at different times by Brig.-Generals Simon B. Buckner, John C. Breckinridge, William Preston, Roger W. Hanson, Ben Hardin Helm and Joseph H. Lewis. It was complimented by the Generals, Albert Sidney Johnston, P. G. T. Beauregard, Braxton Bragg, Joseph E. Johnston and John B. Hood.

The Orphan Brigade fought in every State east of the Mississippi and in front of almost every State capital in the South; opened many of the battles in which it was engaged, and often covered the retreats. No soldiers were better drilled; they won every prize in the army drills, the most notable being the brigade drill at Tullahoma, Tenn., in May, 1863.

In battle the Orphan Brigade "always charged and captured the enemy's stronghold," but the loss was great. At Shiloh it lost 844 out of 2401; at Murfreesboro, 431 out of 812; at Chichamauga 471 out of a total of 1312. Prof. Shaler in his Scribner article states that the one hundred days battle from Dalton to Atlanta, and on to the surrender, surpasses all records: "The moral and physical patience exhibited being without a parallel in ancient or modern

THE CONFEDERATE GOVERNMENT.

This list of the executive officers and Congressmen of the Confederacy will be of interest. The South sent some of her strongest men to make laws and to meet and solve the momentous questions that confronted her in the effort to establish independence, and the statesmanship displayed proved to the world that the new government had brains as well as bravery. This list was taken from the Reunion edition of the Little Rock Gazette.

tears flowing down my cheeks. After so long a time the sad news came of his death and that his body had been placed in the newly made cemetery by the hands of those loving and faithful nurses of the Catholic faith. My hope is that Providence will give me the opportunity, before being called "over there," to see the place where they laid him to rest.

CONFEDERATE DEAD IN THE STATE CEMETERY AT FRANKFORT, KY.

CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. IDA EARLE FOWLER, PRESIDENT JOSEPH H. LEWIS CHAPTER, U. D. C., FRANKFORT.

The cemetery at Frankfort, Ky., is the second State Cemetery ever dedicated. In the spring of 1892, the year of Kentucky's centennial, the Daughters of the Confederacy dedicated a monument to the Confederate soldiers buried there. It is of fine Carrara marble, with a granite base surmounted by a life-sized statue of a uniformed Confederate soldier at "Parade rest." The inscriptions are:

"Our Confederate Dead, 1861–1865."

"They sleep. What need we question now if they were right
Or wrong? They know ere this whose cause was just in God
the Father's sight;
They wield no warlike weapons now, return no foeman's thrust:
Who but a coward would revile the honored soldier's dust?"

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

West side:

"The marble minstrel's voiceful tone
In deathless song shall tell
When many a vanished age hath flown,
The story how ye fell;
Nor wreck nor change nor winter's blight,
Nor Time's remorseless doom
Shall dim one ray of holy light
That gilds your glorious tomb."

East side:

"To every man upon this earth
Death cometh soon or late,
And how can man die better
Than facing fearful odds
For the ashes of his fathers
And the temples of his gods."

In a circle around the monument are the graves of sixty-eight Confederate soldiers, most of whom died of disease at Frankfort during the war.

The following list was taken from L. F. Johnson's "History of the State Cemetery at Frankfort," 1921, with the added names of those who have died later. In this list will be found names of more than passing interest, not only because of the number of noted men who are resting here, but also because there are many from other States whose last resting place may not be known to those who loved them.

Capt. Robert Allen, 5th Kentucky Infantry; J. L. Abbott, 1836–1917, 6th Kentucky Infantry, C. S. A.; James Alley; C. A. Anderson, 7th Florida Infantry; R. A. Anderson, Company H, 2nd Kentucky Infantry; C. Atkins.

George R. Bacon, 8th Kentucky Cavalry, and scout for Capt. Bedford Forrest; Maj. John P. Bacon; Capt. William Bean; Lieut. John Bell, 4th Kentucky Infantry; John Berry; Burbridge Blackburn; Col. J. C. S. Blackburn, governor of Panama; Maj. James Blackburn, Company H, 1st Kentucky Regiment; Surgeon Luke P. Blackburn, hero of the yellow fever epidemics of the seventies and governor of Kentucky; Maj. Benjamin Blanton, on General Hood's staff; Alexander G. Brawner, Company H, 2nd Kentucky Infantry; Jeremiah Brown, 7th Florida Regiment; D. M. Brown, Company E, 4th Kentucky Infantry; Oris T. Bauknight, Florida Regiment; Lieut. Gen. Anderson, the younger brother, at Anson Tex., in the summer of 1920, when this picture was made.

"Uncle Bob" Murchison, as he was known all over Southwest Texas, died in May, 1923, in his eighty-third year, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. B. Silliman, at Abilene, Tex. His comrade, I. E. Anderson, is still living—at Waskom, Tex.—in his eighty-fifth year.

Hugh A. Anderson enlisted in the Confederate army in July, 1863, one month before he was seventeen years old, and served until the end of the war. In June, 1867, he went to work for the United States government, and helped to build forts at Buffalo Springs, Jacksboro, and other places for the protection of the settlers from the Indians. After a year in this work he went home and married Miss Mary Ellen Hamilton, February, 1869, settling on a farm near Selma. In November, 1890, he removed to Jones County, where he died October 20, 1922, at the age of seventy-six.

All three of these old Confederates had passed through stirring experiences with Indians during their boyhood days.

BATTLE OF SHILOH, TENN.

BY JOHN C. STILES, BRUNSWICK, GA.

Eighty-two of our officers, including the commanding general, died consequent to the battle of Shiloh, Tenn., to accomplish nothing more than a partial victory. If, however, the commander had been spared, they would not have died in vain, as there is no doubt in the world that Grant's immediate army would have been annihilated before Buell could possibly have come to his aid.

The following list will show that Tennessee lost twenty-three officers, Arkansas, fourteen; Kentucky, thirteen; Mississippi and Louisiana, eight each; Texas, five; Alabama, three; Florida, two; Georgia, one; Regulars, one; three staff and one general officer.

One general, two adjutants general, one aide, one chaplain, one gunner, one cavalry, and seventy-five infantrymen.

General Officer.

Albert Sidney Johnston.

Staff.

Edward Ingraham, major, aide to Gen. Earl Van Dorn.

Benjamin King, assistant adjutant general to Gen. Daniel Ruggles.

Thomas W. Preston, captain, assistant adjutant general to Gen. A. P. Stewart.

AN INCIDENT OF BATTLE.

BY MRS. MAY M. ANDERSON, NASHVILLE, TENN.

A drummer boy fell in heat of battle,
Only a lad in a suit of gray;
He heard the shouts and the musketry's rattle
Over the field where the wounded lay.
No one could help while the guns were raking
Meadow and wood with their leaden hail;
"The foe has charged and our lines are breaking!
The day is lost!" was his bitter wail.

He closed his eyes while the shock and thunder
Of awful carnage was opened anew,
Then fainted away. Was it any wonder,
When another bullet had pierced him through?
He roused at last, and the tide of battle
Again had changed, for he heard the fray
In the wood beyond, with the ceaseless rattle
Of shot and shell in their deadly play.

His lips were parched and his throat was burning:
"O for some water!" he faintly sighed.
He heard, at his feet, the labored turning
Of a prostrate form, while a clear voice cried:
"My canteen's full, but my arms are broken;
See, you can reach, if you bend this way."
He moved and groaned, and with thanks unspoken
Reached for the water, then shrank away.

He saw, with a start and a sudden quiver,
The youth at his feet wore a suit of blue,
And he marked the frown and the creeping shiver
Which mastered and held him, and thrilled him through,
At sound of the yell from the rebel forces
Which told the tale that the fight was done.
To the Southern lad, how the fresh life courses
Along his veins, for the day is won!

"See, here is the water!" The youth had rallied,
And moved still nearer the form in gray;
It cost him much, for his face grew pallid;
He gasped, yet struggled to faintly say:
"I'd reach you the can, but my arms are shattered."
Then closed his eyes in a deathlike swoon.
He had given his all to a foe! What mattered,
When all would be ended so swift and soon?

With a sob in his throat for the hero before him,
The drummer boy turned, and with tremulous touch
On the pale face sprinkled the water, and o'er him
Murmured a prayer. That was all; not much!
Not much, yet methinks when the sorrow and anguish
For soldier and drummer boy ended that night,
Mid horrors, around where faith seemed to languish,
The darkness was spanned by a rift of light.

A BEAUTIFUL REPLY, BY MR. DAVIS.

BY REV. W. C. CLARK, SHELBYVILLE, TENN.

While President Jefferson Davis was preparing his "History of the Rise and Fall of the Confederate States," he made a visit to the home of Hon. Henry Leovy, at Pass Christian, Miss. He went to pay a friendly visit to the family and to get some papers he had left with Mrs. Leovy and her sisters, the Misses Monroe, daughters of Judge Thomas Monroe, who had been exiled from Kentucky on account of his Southern sympathies. Judge Monroe's family were refugees in Abbeville, S. C., at the time Mr. Davis passed through there, on his way South, after the fall of Richmond. With these friends he left a collection of very valuable papers, including letters from Gen. Lee and other prominent Confederate officials. When Mrs. Leovy brought out the papers and a Confederate battle flag and the model of a gun invented by Mr. Davis, while he was Secretary of War, under the United States Government, Mr. Davis took the battle flag, and as he held that in one hand and the gun in the other, he seemed to stand the representative at once of the United States and the Confederate States governments. As he gave the history of the flag, the memory of the war, in which Mrs. Leovy had lost three brothers, and during which her father had been banished from his Kentucky home and she from New Orleans, and the True Delta, a paper owned by her husband, had been confiscated, rushed over her with such force and vividness as to cause tears to flow down her cheeks and her to exclaim: "Mr. Davis, I have not gotten over the war yet! I believe the ladies were worse rebels than the men, anyhow!"

"Better patriots, madam," was the energetic and instantaneous reply from the man who had served faithfully in the army and Congress of the United States, and then, believing that the States were sovereign, and that sovereigns could not rebel and that his allegiance was due, first to his State, served his State and country with equal fidelity and ability, when Mississippi had become a member of the Confederate States Government. It is well for our children to remember that their fathers never admitted that they were rebels and traitors, and to know that, though Mr. Davis was arrested on the charge of treason, no attempt was ever made to prove the charge, because lawyers knew it could not be sustained.

THE CRISIS AT SHARPSBURG.

A correspondent from Salisbury, N. C., gives some interesting reminiscences of the battle of Sharpsburg, and corrects an error in the VETERAN for August, 1893:

The timely use of the deserted brass piece by four officers of Longstreet's staff, instead of the Fourteenth North Carolina Regiment, saved Gen. Lee's army from being cut in two, with Longstreet to the right, Jackson to the left, and D. H. Hill pressed into the river. Gen. Longstreet sustains him in this part of his official report: "As I rode along the line with my staff, I saw two pieces of Washington artillery (Miller's battery), but there were not enough men to man them; the gunners had been either killed or wounded. This was a fearful situation for the Confederate center. I put my staff officers to the guns, while I held the horses. It was easy to see that if the Federals broke through our line there, the Confederate army would be cut in two and probably destroyed, for we were already badly whipped and were only holding our ground by sheer force of desperation." That little battery shot harder and faster, with a sort of human energy, as though it realized that it was to hold the thousands of Federals at bay, or the battle would be lost. After a little, a shot came across the Federal front, plowing the ground in a parallel line; another and another, each coming nearer and nearer their line. This enfilade fire, so distressing to soldiers, was a battery on D. H. Hill's line, and it soon beat back the attacking column. The Richmond papers, just after the battle, gave Gen. Longstreet and his staff all the credit of saving Lee's army, at that time. Gen. McClellan lost the chance of his life by not reënforcing and pushing his center just then. I see in your journal that some object to being called rebels. For heaven's sake let us retain the name, for rebellion is honorable in "right against might." The writer's family have been rebels since the days of Bruce, and will be rebels

Though men deserve, they may not win success.
The brave will honor the brave, vanquished none the less.

See "Good News for the New Year," on page 368.

The date for the Houston reunion is to be fixed by the commander, Gen. Gordon. It may occur in April. Early notice will be given in the VETERAN.

The engraving of the little child on the front page of this VETERAN is from a photograph of little Bessie Washington, daughter of Hon. Joseph E. Washington, member of Congress from Tennessee.

The management of the Missouri Confederate Home will issue its annual report in January. From advance notes it is apparent that the Home is in every way successful. On his recent visit to Higginsville, Gen. Gordon said that its system of management was the best that he had seen. The Home has a very rich and well-tilled farm.

Send in promptly for binders if wanted. Red cloth are to be furnished for 40 cents, or $1.30 with renewal; and red leather for $1.60, separately for 80 cents.

The supply of binders as proposed is not for profit, but to oblige patrons. They cannot be furnished at the prices named except in large quantities, and if orders are insufficient the money will be refunded.

Please write at once, if you want either kind.

Some unknown friend has supplied the VETERAN two years with the daily paper reports of the proceedings of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Indianapolis papers came each day, and the Pittsburg papers were all received at one time.

Johnson City, Tenn., November 12, 1894.—Camp Gen. John B. Gordon of Confederate Veterans: "Be it resolved that this Camp hereafter recognize the CONFEDERATE VETERAN, published by S. A. Cunningham, of Nashville, Tenn., as our official organ." Adopted. W. A. Kite, Adjutant.

Mr. Isaac Litton, the venerable father of veterans in Nashville, was buried by the Frank Cheatham Bivouac the Sunday before Christmas. He died the Friday previous at his country place near the city. He had well advanced into his eighty-third year, his birth being January 30, 1812, in Dublin, Ireland, but his parents brought him to Nashville in 1818. He was sixty years a Methodist. His service to the Confederacy was on the sanitary commission. His home was occupied, under confiscation methods, when he returned home on parole at the end of the war. There were at the funeral nearly as many comrades as he was years old. Services at the residence were conducted by three clergymen, and at the grave the formal beautiful burial service was performed by his war comrades. The procession was fully a half mile long.

The Charleston, S. C., branch of the National Daughters of the Confederacy, having selected December 20 (Secession Day) as their anniversary, held their first anniversary meeting on that day, in the hall of the Carolina Rifles, which these gentlemen have most courteously placed at their disposal, as a suitable place for their meetings. The officers reëlected for the coming year are: President, Mrs. Augustine T. Smythe; Vice Presidents, Mrs. Alfred Rhett, Mrs. Asbury Coward; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Martha B. Washington; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Edward R. Miles; Treasurer, Mrs. Francis Lejau Parker, vice Mrs. D. G. Rowe, resigned; Historian, Mrs. Langdon Cheves. Our organization is still in its infancy, but the welcome it has received from the women of our State shows that the memories of our "Lost Cause" are still warm in our hearts, whilst the cherishing of them is no disloyalty to the Union, of which we form a part. A unanimous resolution was passed adopting the CONFEDERATE VETERAN as the organ of our Association, the members fully sympathizing with the valuable work done by this magazine, and wishing to give all the aid in their power to extend its noble influence.

BISHOP QUINTARD WILL WRITE A BOOK.

December 19, 1894.—My Dear Mr. C.: I have been persuaded into writing a book! "O that mine enemy would write a book." It is to be entitled "Recollections of a Chaplain in the Confederate Army." I am most anxious to get "my boys" to loan me such records as they may have, or any anecdotes or incidents they may have recorded on the tablets of memory or have written down on paper. Will you kindly call attention to this in this VETERAN? Yours most truly, C. T. Quintard.

1 - Major Andrew Monroe (16 -1668) immigrated to America from Scotland about 1641 and settled in Saint Mary's County, Maryland. In 1648 he crossed the Potomac River and settled on Monroe Creek, Westmoreland County, Virginia, where he received land patents before the formation of the county. By his wife Elizabeth, traditionally nee Alexander, he had two sons, viz: (1) Andrew (1664-1714) married Eleanor Spence and (2) William (1666-1737) married Margaret Bowcock and had four sons, viz: (A) Colonel William Monroe (1697-1760) mentioned on page 81 as the father of Thomas Monroe (17 - 1777) who married Catherine Hore; (B) Andrew Monroe, Sheriff of Westmoreland County, who predeceased his father in 1735 and was the grandfather of President James Monroe (1758-1831); (C) George Monroe who died testate in Westmoreland County, 1776; and (D) Thomas Monroe who died testate in King George County, 1746, leaving five children, viz: (i) William; (ii) John; (iii) Andrew; (iv) Sarah and (v) Mary Monroe. Of these, (ii) John Monroe (circa 1736 - 1785) married Sarah Harrison (circa 1740 - 1825) and settled in Fairfax County where she had inherited land from her father, Captain William Harrison [see page 50]. They had issue: (a) William born circa 1758; (b) Spence, born 1760 [see Revolutionary Pension #S-8900], of Loudoun County, 1832; (c) Harrison born circa 1763; (d) Andrew (1765-1829) married Mary Dailey (1763-1847) and lived in Loudoun County; (e) Isabella; (f) Sarah Monroe, sole legatee named in her mother's will; and (g) George Monroe. There may have been other children. There is considerable record of John Monroe and his family in the records of Fairfax and Loudoun counties.

THE MARYLAND ANCESTRY OF JAMES MONROE.

By MONROE JOHNSON

Students of Maryland history and genealogy will be interested to learn that the Monroe family of Westmoreland County, Virginia, from which James Monroe was descended, had its origin in Maryland. So, if Maryland cannot, like her sister State of Virginia, boast of the honor of being the mother of the fifth President, she can at least claim to be the great-grandmother of that distinguished statesman.

President Daniel C. Gilman of Johns Hopkins University, who wrote the first comprehensive biography of President Monroe, frankly admitted that he had not been successful in tracing the pedigree of his subject. President Gilman did, however, refer to an old statement, which has since been found to be erroneous, that the first of the family in America was one Andrew Monroe, who came to Virginia after the defeat of the Royalist army in England, in which he held the rank of major. Based on this statement, the author of the Monroe Doctrine was, until recent years, thought to have come of Cavalier ancestry—the origin commonly, but mistakenly, attributed to the leading Virginia families. While Doctor Gilman was making his fruitless search among the Virginia archives for a description of the Monroe immigrant, a fairly complete account of him, strange to relate, lay hidden in the old Maryland records, directly under the eyes of the searcher.

Monroe Family

More recent researches have disclosed that Andrew Monroe, the great-great-grandfather of President Monroe, arrived in Maryland about 1637, settling on Kent Island, where the turbulent William Claiborne had established a trading post several years before the Ark and the Dove, bearing Lord Baltimore's colonists, dropped anchor off Saint Mary's. The records are silent regarding the immigrant's European antecedents, but, since the name Monroe is a variant of the Scottish clan name Munro, he must have come from Scotland, or perhaps from Ulster in Ireland. Like many another Scottish Highlander of that day, he was unable to write and made his mark, when his signature was required.

The colonial records of Maryland show that Monroe commanded a pinnace, a small vessel, under Cuthbert Fenwick, general agent for Lord Baltimore. But when Richard Ingle, who has been variously described as a " pirate " and a "patriot," according to the political views of the historian, declared for Parliament and attempted to overthrow the Proprietary, Captain Monroe, a Protestant, joined Ingle in the Maryland rebellion, which was a miniature counterpart of the struggle then raging in England between Cavalier and Roundhead.

After the suppression of Ingle's revolt against the authority of the Calverts, Andrew Monroe took refuge across the Potomac in Westmoreland County, Virginia, where a land patent was issued to him in 1650. On this land President James Monroe was born in 1758—over a century after it had been granted to his first American ancestor.

It is interesting to note that Charles Tyler, the ancestor of President John Tyler, also left Maryland for Virginia, probably at the same time and under the same circumstances as Captain Monroe.

The descendants of Andrew Monroe and Elizabeth, his wife, became substantial citizens of the Northern Neck of Virginia, owning respectable estates and many slaves. Although the Monroes were prominent locally, being for several generations justices of the peace and officers in the militia, they did not occupy the same position in society as their wealthier neighbors, the Lees, Washingtons, Alstons and others, whose larger holdings entitled them to greater consideration both socially and politically.

In connection with the discarding of the tradition that the Monroes were of Cavalier stock, it is interesting to note that Thomas J. Wertenbaker in his " Patrician and Plebeian in Virginia " offers convincing evidence that the " first families of Virginia," so many of which are related by blood or marriage to prominent Maryland families, are, with only a few exceptions, derived from ancestors of the English merchant and, in some instances, yeoman classes. Despite the long-cherished belief in the Cavalier origin of these capable and cultured families, which have played such a prominent part in national affairs, Mr. Wertenbaker shows conclusively that the Virginia aristocracy was gradually developed on American soil instead of being transplanted, full-grown, from England, as so many historians have assumed.[1]

FAMOUS PEOPLE

JAMES MONROE

by Craig Hart

James Monroe was born in Westmoreland County, Virgina, on April 28, 1758. He was the son of Spence and Elizabeth (Jones) Monroe.

At the outbreak of the Revolutionary War he enlisted in the Continental Army. He rose from private to major during the course of the war.

After the war, he became a member of the Virginia State Legislature. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1790. After his term as Senator, he served as a representative of the United States in France, Spain, and England. In 1799, Monroe was elected governor of Virgina.

In 1803 President Jefferson sent Monroe to buy the Louisiana Territory from Napoleon. He succeeded in acquiring it. Monroe considered this his greatest accomplishment.

When James Madison became President, he appointed Monroe to be Secretary of State. He was in charge of foreign affairs during the War of 1812. After the capture of Washington in 1813, Monroe took over the office of Secretary of War.

He served so well that he became the nominee for President in 1816 and was elected. His administration was known as the "era of good feeling;" because there was almost no major political disagreement or financial distress during these years. He was responsible for several major events during his administration including: the purchase of Florida from Spain, the Missouri Compromise, and the Monroe Doctrine.

In 1786, Monroe married Eliza Kortwright. They had two daughters. Monroe died July 4, 1834 in New York.

Dear Ms. Lander,

I have gotten your name and address from Regina Hines column in Sun Herald. This is the article about the clan gathering of the Gulf Coast Scottish Society. I am descended from the Munro clan. I am in DAR on line of Daniel Munro who migrated to Maryland from Edinburg about 1776 and is documented serving in Revolution in Maryland. The family moved to Va, then Ky., and his grandson John T. Monroe became the mayor of New Orleans during the Civil War. The records of the mayor, who was my great grandfather, say this Monroe line is cousin of President James Monroe. My Daniel served in several battles as the president I am trying to establish this connection. I am sending you information on the president's lineage to 1312. I would appreciate very much if you could put me in touch with Munro clan members in the states and in Scotland who could help me with proof of this relationship. I would like to join the Munro clan as Monroe is my middle name and important line. All 4 great grandfathers served the Confederacy(documented) Have many who served in Revolution and 1812. 15 Colonial Dames lines. Eligible for 1st Families of Miss. on several lines. All my ancestors uncovered were W.A.S.P from England, Scottland, Wales, and Ireland. I will look forward to your reply.

Yours truly,
Rubie Harris

Hi Else!

I haven't got to SEE you yet, except in the newspaper, yesterday! With my vacation, and then other stuff, then a reunion in N. MS, then the hurricane, I STILL haven't gotten down there when you are there.

I just saw this on the SC Mailing list and thought that you might like to put it in a file somewhere there, since I know there are some Bacots in this area. Seems I have seen that file there somewhere.

Hope this helps someone.

Hi. I'm writing a book about towns in the U.S. with Indian names. I have sparse info on the history for Pascagoula. Would it be possible to receive about 5-6 pages of the community's early history (its beginnings and general info about early settlers), rather than a whole book? I've received great information from towns that had published bi- or centennial books. I would really like to include the town, but just don't have enough info. Would appreciate any help you can send my way. Or perhaps you could give me another resource to contact.

Thanks

Else, sorry that I could not attend the last meeting here in Mobile. I really need to have more information about my fathers side of the family. My father was Roy Craig Olson and his father was Charles S. Olson and he married a lady from Denmark maybe Norway named Signe' Frogner Olsen I think, see if you have that in your book. They all lived in Duluth Minnesota, except Dad and we lived in Pascagoula. Thanks I really appreciate any help you can give me concerning the Olsons. I don't have any wedding dates or birth dates .
